

The Global Progress Conference, the meeting of the Scientific Committee and the IDEAS Awards are among the main activities reflected in the Annual Report 2011

The year has ended with the IDEAS Foundation holding the 14th position on the ranking of the best think tanks affiliated to political parties, according to the reputable report by the Pennsylvania, thus reinforcing itself as a stable and efficient think tank.

The 2011 Annual Report of the IDEAS Foundation is a good proof of this, showing the capacity of the Foundation to organize conferences, symposiums and seminars with major social impact, progress in the area of training activities and offer the public opinion reports and documents that generate debate with proposals on the aspects that worry the world most.

Our balance of the year 2011 is positive and we would like to highlight the activities that met the most interest from the media and citizens:

In October, the IDEAS Foundation gathered in Madrid worldwide progressive leaders at the III Global Progress Conference “A Future of Progress.” The conference saw the participation of representatives from the five continents Lula Da Silva, François Hollande, Gordon Brown, Felipe González and Alfredo Pérez Rubalcaba as well as some worldwide progressive strategists and renowned political analysts. The meeting got important media coverage and saw the signature of the declaration of principles “A G-20 Pact for growth and employment is the solution to the current crisis.”
